Bad Breath May Show You Need This Help!

Bad breath is sometimes due to bad teeth and often due to sluggish bowels.

It offends. And to neglect it may invite a host of constipation's other discomforts: headaches, biliousness, loss of appetite and energy. Don't let constipation slow you down. Take a little spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT tonight. In the morning there's an evacuation that's generally thorough. You feel fine again!

BLACK-DRAUGHT'S principal ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative." It helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. Millions of packages used yearly!

Health A Factor In Getting Ready for School

"A child's first entrance in school is a major event both in his life and in his parent's. Not only does it mark the beginning of the long period of training for labor life, but in a larger sense than is generally appreciated it is the youngster's initial competitive step. And to compete successfully at any period of life, including early school days, both body and mind must be as fit as possible," states Dr. I. C. Riggin, state health commissioner.

"During the late spring and summer months efforts of physicians and public health officials are directed toward the discovery and correction of remediable physical defects in the preschool child. The public's cooperation by this connection has been increasing each year--and this season has been no exception.

"Despite this satisfactory evidence of parental concern, it is possible that a number of mothers and fathers have failed to have their preschool children examined by their family physician. Though a youngster may appear healthy to his parents, neglecting to have the child examined may not only affect his ability to compete with his associates in school work, but conceivably, through postponed discovery of a latent and correctable condition handicap him in later life. Plainly, such a possibility is too big a risk for any parent to assume for the child.

"Consequently, during the days remaining before school opens, all parents who have not yet had their preschool children examined should arrange to have this done without delay.

"The family physician will vaccinate for smallpox and inoculate against diphtheria if the child has not been immunized in infancy as he should have been. In addition there will be, among others, examinations of the eyes, ears, mouth, throat, glandular system, heart and lungs, abdomen, nervous system, and an investigation for structural defects.

"If a clean bill of health can be given, the parent will then know that the child's chances to make a success of his first year in school will be at least average. On the other hand, if defects are discovered and proper steps are taken to correct them, it should be a great satisfaction to know that conditions which might have led to serious physical impairment, to repeating in school, and unhappiness to the child, have been removed."

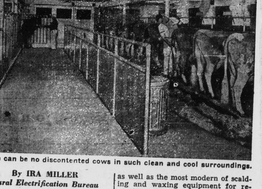
Farming at the World's Fair Is Made Easy With Electricity



There can be no discontented cows in such clean and cool surroundings.

By IRA MILLER
Rural Electrification Bureau

IN A previous story, I told of some of the more outstanding electrical features of the house on the world's most compact and unusual farm--that of the electric light and power companies at the New York World's Fair. Although the description which follows is devoted to the farm buildings and, therefore, of principal importance to the men of the family, the women also will find much of interest in it.

Equipped with correct and ample lights, ventilating fans, electric fly screens, drinking cups, latest-type stalls and pens, hay hoist, feed grinding and mixing machinery, and silo with ensilage cutter the barn is complete and modern in every respect.

Electricity is indispensable in the dairy business, and every step in the production and processing of milk may be seen at the electrified farm. Among the equipment in the all-electric milk house are a magnetic combine milking machine, separator, clarifier, pasteurizer, irradiator (for adding Vitamin D), bottler and capper, churn, cabinet-type and walk-in milk coolers, water heater and utensil sterilizer.

The poultry house, a complete unit in every detail, uses electricity wherever possible. Included in the electrical equipment are an incubator, brooder brooder, warm-air ventilating fans, ultra-violet lights, water warmers, egg candler and grader, candler, as well as the most modern of scalding and waxing equipment for removing feathers when preparing broilers for market.

Other buildings include a horse barn, a completely-equipped and electrically-operated workshop, an insulated greenhouse which eliminates the need for a central heating plant, a community packing and cold storage house, and a stationary spray pumphouse. Also, lack of space prevents me from giving any details concerning the electrical equipment in those structures. However, I cannot close without briefly mentioning one of the outstanding recent developments in the rural field and one which has tremendous future possibilities for the farmer.

I refer to the electric freezing cabinets, each of which contains about 30 cubic feet of freezing and storage space--ample for an average farm family. With these cabinets, it is possible to freeze and keep indefinitely such quickly-spoiling foods as strawberries, red raspberries and sweet corn, as well as all other fruits, vegetables, meats and poultry.

If you'd like to see over a hundred working examples of the more than two hundred ways in which electricity can make your farm life more profitable, comfortable, easier and safer, don't fail to visit the electrified farm of the electric light and power companies at the World's Fair. Combine business with rest and pleasure--come to New York and see how you can electrify your farm at a surprisingly low cost.
